

gc EPO End-of-Project Review

AO4 8/10

Name: XXX

Student No.:

Date: 18th April

Title: The inequalities Female Police Officers face in the British Police Force

Has the student produced sufficient evidence of

- a) decision making
- b) data collection
- c) analysis & synthesis of data Excellent interpretation
- d) a variety of sources Excellent use of a wide range of resources

Is the project plan fully implemented and fully realised to a high standard?

Yes. This is an excellent piece of work. Good introduction by including the historical background to the police force. Very well executed. XXX is passionate about her studies and has a personal interest in this topic. I felt it was rather biased but I understand her strong emotions

Evidence & reasons for change (if appropriate)

XXX had very clear ideas what she wanted to research from the onset and has stuck to her plan, which didn't require many changes.

Is the format/structure appropriate? A very personal piece of work reflecting the sensitivity of the subject and XXX's involvement in her work. Good language skills; Well written and informative.

Is the material relevant? Yes. XXX has researched at the University and delivered the project at a suitable level

Conclusions – are these based on sound evidence & judgement?

Yes – from the research material she used but I would have liked to see some aspects showing a more positive picture – if there is one.

Reflection - a good overall view
